More visual aids on the Tucson thing;

 carpe noir (<https://carpe-noir.livejournal.com/>) thought I'd like Stu Jenks's photos, which I do, because when he takes a picture of something, he takes a picture of what it looks like on the inside. So here's his take on the All Souls' thing (https://www.livejournal.com/away?to=http%3A//stujenks.typepad.com/my_weblog/2007/11/the-all-souls-p.html). It looked like that on the inside.

Also, last night's dream, because sometimes these things go away if you look at them straight on. I was at work, and the lights kept going out. Just for a couple seconds at a time, but every time it happened, when the lights came back on, someone was missing. Nobody seemed to notice this but me. Finally it's just the Cowboy and me in the bullpen, and SR in his office. I went over to B and said, Hey, every time the lights flicker, someone disappears. He laughed at me. Then the lights flickered, and I was standing in front of his chair and he wasn't in it.

So I went up to SR's office and told him. He didn't look up from whatever he was reading, but he said, "That doesn't make any sense." I was in the middle of telling him, no, it didn't, but it was happening anyway, when the lights went out. When they came back on, he was still there. I was so relieved and happy, and I thought, Well, of course it wouldn't work on him, hah hah. I said, "Okay, this time it didn't happen."

And he still didn't look up. So I said his name. Nothing. I yelled and pounded my fists on his desk, and he didn't look up. Because, of course, this time it was me; this was what had happened to everyone else, and they'd been trying to get someone's attention, but even though I was one of them now, they still weren't there. I was alone.

I woke up before the lights could go out again.

If Duke were kind of hot, maybe.

OMG, did I just say that?

You know, Duke is kind of hot. I mean he's no Cowboy. But for a guy who could be my dad, and who is rapidly going the way of Patrick Stewart, not too shabby.

He hasn't gotten skinny-flabby the way most runners do. He's got totally cut forearms. And shoulders, too, from the motorcycling, I think.

(Hey, I'm safely taken. I can look.)

Does he have a girlfriend?

I think it may be more like, occasional friends with benefits. I think Sol's secretly a romantic. Waiting for Ms. Right.

Maybe we should hook him up with you know who. Two battle-scarred romantics deserve each other...

And wherever Duke is on the Scoville scale, Harpy, have you seen the prospective hookup's flirt material? Not an expert or anything, but pretty consistently over on the habañero side, man. By my standards. I mean, if I had standards. I mean, those standards.

Ohgawd, how did I get into this? I'm gonna ban you both.

Oh yeah, he does okay.

Not that he's uneasy on the eyes. You know. If you were the sort of boy to be looking. In that direction. Which you are totally not.

Actually, there is a TNG episode kind of like that, where the doctor chick is walking through the ship and things and people keep vanishing...

Except it turns out she vanished.

I just totally brought those coals to Newcastle, didn't I?

- When Stu does still lifes, it's pretty amazing to see the soul of a standing stone in the north of Scotland, or get overwhelmed by the shrine of a religion you don't practice. But when there's people involved, like those All Souls' pictures (the last two), wow! That's connecting the viewer to something else.
- That's a downright horrific dream.
- What are the chances that your other co-workers will ever stumble across these conversations of yours? :)

-It was a doozy, all right. You can have it tomorrow if you want: I'm done with it.

-That's why it's all "friends-locked." v;-)
